Dinner Table Novelties.
At a little dinner the other evening given by a well known woman of fashion many novelties were introduced which other hostesses will be glad to copy.

Terrapin was served to each guest in a miniature chafing dish perfect in every detail. Throughout the course the little lamp was kept burning under each dish. The chafing dishes were made of plated silver, with ebony handles, and gave a special touch of novelty to the course.

When it came time to serve the sorbet, it was found in the center of an exquisite pink orchid. The stem of the orchid was coiled to form the standard, and the curled petals of the flower itself were shaded pink wax. In the center was a little paper case filled with the sorbet. As this was a pious dinner, the orchids carried out the color scheme, but they can be bought in a variety of colors. In faint green, with a touch of violet at the edge, they are most artistic.

Many of the dishes at this dinner were brought to the table covered—that is, the individual plate had an individual cover which matched it exactly. The portion, when brought to each guest, was not seen until the cover was removed by the butler. Little silver loving cups are also used for the serving of the sorbets and creams. Generally their only decoration is the owner's monogram.

He Always Loved Her.
The story of the courtship of Miss Cecilia Miles, General Miles' only daughter, by Captain Reber is one of a man's devotion to the ideal of his childhood and youth. It is an army romance, with one of the army's loveliest women as heroine and one of its bravest men as hero. To little Cecilia Miles big Sam Reber was always her boy hero. He was so big and strong, and though he was 15 years older than she, he seemed to play with her, and she was excited in the honor.

They were happy times for Baby Miles when her parents visited Judge Reber's family or the Rebers returned the visit, because they always meant some glorious romps and delightful hours tete-a-tete with Sammy Reber. She liked Sammy because he told her stories. She had her first fearsome thrills over "Red Riding Hood" and the dreadful bears, when Cousin Sammy's voice told her a sepulchral whisper as he told the old fairy tale. He was quite willing to convert himself into a four legged animal—sometimes a camel, often an elephant, often a horse, according to her whimsical pleasure—that she might ride around the parlor on his back. The first cloud upon her juvenile happiness was his munificence.

"You look old now, like papa," she said regretfully, and so great was her love that she never found courage to ask him to be a horse or a camel again.—Baltimore American.

Mr. Dooley on Woman Suffrage.
"An amiable woman'll never vote," said Mr. Dooley, interrupting Mr. Donahue's discourse on "Woman Suffrage." "In the first place, th' men won't have thim do it. They have th' monopoly now, an' th'ir far from foolish enough to let go o' it any way it. Thim no woman cares f' politics. Down in her heart she hates an' despises it. An' I don't blame her. Not till they start a political column in Buttrick's patterns will ye ever be able f' to muster a corporal's guard o' women at th' polls. I believe if ye was to take th' strongest woman suffereger in th' country an' sarch her f'ed him, she didn't care whether William J. O'Brien was alderman or congressman. Th' only time th' likes it thim knows who's president is when th' president gets married. He has th'ir devotion in his wife's name."

"Well, I dinnaw about that," said Mr. Dooley. "Thim lookin' dangerous when Mrs. Donahue begins to think it yodin. In times past she never knew 'twas fiction day till she saw th' patrol wagon go by."—Ladies' Home Journal.

A Popular Army Nurse.
Mrs. Sarah J. Ennis is a heroine of the late war. In July, 1863, she went to Saratoga in the capacity of nurse and is still employed in the hospitals. At one time at El Caney there were over 100 wounded soldiers under her direct supervision. She has never been ill or off duty since she arrived there. Mrs. Ennis is a fine looking colored woman and was born in Santa Cruz, West Indies. She came with her husband to this country. He was steward on the ill fated steamship Elbe which was wrecked on the Irish coast. After his death she entered the training school for nurses in connection with the Freedmen's hospital in Washington and was graduated in 1868. Three months later she was en route for Saratoga. Her skill as nurse and her untiring energy and devotion have won the esteem of officers and privates.

A Baby's Cry.
A moderately intimate acquaintance with infants enables one to distinguish almost from birth three cries—the healthy yell by which the child exercises his lungs, the fretting of moderate discomfort and the acute cry of pain, the latter two including at first hunger, thirst and dissatisfaction. By the end of three months the nurse or mother should be able to distinguish the fretting of actual physical discomfort from that of restlessness and the sharp cry of pain from the less acute announcement of thirst, hunger, etc. While anger imparts a characteristic quality to the cry. If the baby is comfortably dressed and properly fed, he will be less likely to be fretful and crying.—Dr. A. L. Benedict in Woman's Home Companion.

There must be something stronger than imagination behind expressions of such representative citizens of Lima as Mr. L. Melville's drug store and that their use had radically disposed of pain across the back and the muscles toward the shoulder blades a constant aching of the loins was very depressing and when freed of the annoyance I was only too pleased to make known the means employed. Ah, me, full many a year has dawned—
Two decades if a day—
Since first I saw that face, and I,
Also, am growing gray.

As then, its crown of hair
Brimming that face which shows no trace
Of trouble, time nor care!
No cruel crow's feet mark the eyes
I gaze upon through "eyes."
And in the smile, the melange smile,
That countenance betrays
That met my roving glance long since
The cheeks are dimpled still.
The teeth intact. Oh, 'tis a fact,
Time's conquests here are nil!
Here naught's surrendered to the years
Not time nor tribute paid;
Not less below's early bloom
Long years ago did fade.
And still untouched by time I see,
While I grow old and sad,
That smiling face in its old place

The ancients believed that rheumatism was the work of a demon within a man. Any one who has had an attack of sciatic or inflammatory rheumatism will agree that the infliction is demonic enough to warrant the belief. STORY OF A WATCH.
Lost at the Battle of Gettysburg and Found in Honolulu.

An old fashioned silver watch was lost in the battle of Gettysburg in 1863. Thirty-six years later that same watch was restored to its owner in Honolulu.

George Dietz was the soldier who lost the watch in the battle of Gettysburg, says the San Francisco Call. His company was Company D of the Sixth Connecticut volunteers. They were brave men that went to form it, brave and ambitious and true to their flag. But the south fought hard, and it, too, was strong, and the plucky volunteer company found itself with some other commands hemmed in between two advancing columns of rebels. The Confederates maintained a merciless fire, and the

HOW DIETZ LOST HIS WATCH AT GETTYSBURG.

"Yanks" were compelled to retreat. The retreat soon became a rout. Company K of the Thirty-eighth New York volunteers followed Dietz's party in its helter skelter departure from a tight place.

Dietz was young in those times, young and proud besides, for he was the possessor of a silver watch such as makes glad the heart of youth. It was solid silver, a key winder, of course, and its name was decided for him by those behind, and he was soon hustled far from the spot where he had lost the silver watch.

A few days ago the old watchmaker was waiting for a customer in his little Nuuanu street store. While he waited I had the bad fortune to break the crystal of my timepiece, and as I, too, was upon Nuuanu street and near his store I stepped in. While Mr. Dietz was trying different crystals in my watch another customer appeared upon the scene. A soldier boy he was, short of money and desirous to pawn an old silver key wind watch which he carried.

The courteous jeweler explained that key wind watches were of no value except as old silver. He could advance nothing upon it, he said.

The soldier was urgent. He begged Dietz to examine the watch more closely. "It is in good condition, even though old fashioned," he said, "and it's the purest of silver."

Dietz looked closely merely out of politeness. Suddenly his expression changed to one of real interest. His lips twitched in excitement. With the old self possession he calmed himself and spoke deliberately.

There are several reasons why I should not advance money on this watch. For one I am not a pawnbroker. For another, it has no value except as old silver. Last, but not least, it is not yours to sell or pawn. That is my watch."

The soldier was indignant, exclaiming that the watch was given to him by his father, away back in Iowa, and that his father had possessed it since 1863. Dietz replied:

Yes, I can tell you the day that it came into your father's possession. It was the 3d of July, 1863.

There is nothing to hide—certainly, that was the date. But that fact does not prove your right. My father was Walter Ellis of Company K, Thirty-eighth New York volunteers. In the retreat of July 3 he found this watch on the battlefield. He gave it to me as I left home for the Philippines, and he said: 'This watch has been through one war. Carry it through another and then keep it as an heirloom for your children.'"

"I am hard up. I only want to pawn the watch, and if you'll lend me something on it I'll promise to redeem it before the regiment leaves Honolulu."

"Young man," said Dietz, "I have not opened the watch, but I will describe it to you. It is wound with a key. The key post passes through a hole bored through a glass crystal, which is a peculiar fact. The works are of steel and German silver. Now, if you will take this glass out and look at the bevel ring which holds the crystal covering the works you will find my name scratched upon it, 'George Dietz, Company D, Sixth Connecticut volunteers.' That is my watch."

George Dietz spoke truly. The young man was satisfied, and the two compromised. Dietz gave Ellis a new silver watch and $5. for this he asked that the young soldier brought back to the old soldier his treasure lost from 1863 to 1899.

UNITED IN DEATH.

Which has just witnessed a romance which in its tragic end and dramatic details is pathetic in the extreme. The victim of this hapless love were a young Kansas girl named Ella Richards of well to do parents, excellent education and delicate refinement, and a young, full-blooded Indian brave, Jack Flinhouse, who had felt the touch of civilization's hand and had become an intelligent and ambitious citizen. Both died afflicted by a terrible malady, though their deaths were due to fearful exaggerations of love.

Ella Richards was brought up in her father's home at Mulvane, Kan., surrounded by all modern refinements and luxuries. She was heart whole until a year ago, when she visited Wichita. Then she met the man who could gain a power over her, who awakened her susceptibilities, and she fell in love with him and he with her.

This was the growth of a month that Miss Richards spent at Wichita. But the sweetness had to end eventually, and she went back to Mulvane in due time. On both sides protestations of undying love were made, and the two were happy in their fondness, even though an unfortunate necessity separated them by 100 miles or more.

Both hoped and eagerly awaited the reunion which they expected would follow his appointment to a government post for which he was an applicant and which he secured by political influence of securing. But the romance came earlier under much different circumstances than they anticipated.

They corresponded constantly with one another. Daily letters came to Mulvane to Miss Richards. For nine months this continued, and then suddenly they ceased. At a loss to understand the cause, she wrote three or four letters, but none were answered. There were a fortnight's silence and bitter grief and disappointment. Then this was relieved, only to be heightened by a telegram.

The poor girl was frantic. She determined to go to him. Her parents forbade it, fearing the danger of infection. They would not aid her. But love was too strong to be denied. She ran away from home and walked 100 miles between her home and Wichita. When she arrived, she rushed to the house on the outskirts in which her lover was isolated. She was by his side despite the disapproval of the doctors and happy in the thought that she could nurse him back to health.

At this she might have done had it not been for an unfortunate misunderstanding. One day the two doctors without the door of the sickroom in consultation. They talked of his recovery, but she misunderstood and thought they had predicted his death. She was wild. He should not die and leave her. She would nurse him in disease and death.

Unhappily the means were lacking. A scorching lay close at hand. She seized it and thrust it into a vein near the surface of his arm. As the blood started her lips covered the wound. She drew the poisoned blood between her lips and then swallowed it, undrugged the arm and awaited the hand of death.

It soon afflicted her. Weakened by the worry and stress of nursing, she fell a weary victim. She grew rapidly worse. Her life was despaired of, and in four days she died.

Meanwhile the stronger constitution of the son of nature had asserted itself. He was steadily improving. In a week he was able to be out of doors. Sitting in the sun well wrapped in furs, he watched the stream flow by the door. He asked for his sweetheart. Believing him strong enough to stand the shock, they told him the truth.

He was frantic. They looked for grief, but not such grief as his. He cried aloud for her to come back to him and then springing up rushed from the door. Before they could reach him he was out of the yard and running like mad to the river.

On the cliffs a grove used by summer picnickers. Cutting a piece of rope from one of the swigs, he tied a stone about his neck and leaped from the edge of the cliff.

The tragic fate of the girl was hidden from her parents as long as possible, but the story of his death was soon wired to them, and they learned all. The father hastened to Wichita and took both bodies home with him. They are to be buried side by side on Sunday in the Mulvane cemetery. Over them he will raise a monument suitably inscribed with the story of their mutual sacrifice at love's shrine.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

In Unappreciated Compliment—Social Regulations—A Champion of Woman Suffrage.

(Special Correspondence.)

The title of "watchdog of the treasury" is a proud distinction for which many statesmen at Washington strive. After years of the most vigilant watchfulness at the bungalow of the treasury, Senator Francis Marion Cockrell of Missouri has won this title and distinction. It appears, however, that there are certain strata of society in which the significance of this sobriquet is not understood. This was illustrated a few days ago by an incident in the women's gallery of the senate. A daughter of the Missouri senator was accompanied to the gallery by two girl friends from the west. Sitting behind them was a party of strangers under the clearance of a Washingtonian, who was pointing out the notables as they appeared in the chamber. As Senator Cockrell strode in slowly and with proper dignity the cicerone, as was his duty, pointed him out to the party with the stereotyped remark, "That's Senator Cockrell of Missouri, the 'watchdog of the treasury'." Quick as a flash the Washingtonian felt the eyes of the two girls in front of him riveted upon him with indignant glances. "How do you dare apply such a term to Senator Cockrell, the greatest man in the senate?" snapped one of the western girls. Miss Cockrell attempted to explain that in the stranger's remark there was an implied compliment of very high value to her father, but her friend could not be made to see it in that light. The man attempted to apologize, but in vain. The girls swept out of the gallery murmuring that they had never before heard such a "rude thing" said about the idol of the Missouri Democracy, and if this was the way Washington people talked about western statesmen they were going to try to have the capital moved from this city to St. Louis, where it ought to be.

Social Regulations. Washington society is formal and ceremonious. Probably there is no city in this country where social connections are so strictly observed, and certain it is there is no city in the land where there is such punctilious observance of precedence established by official rank.

For instance, it is said that the wives of cabinet members are now expected to call on the wives of senators first.

You may not think that is a very serious matter, but it is. Time was when this important point was not settled and Washington society was in a turmoil because of jealousies engendered over the fact that this point was still debatable. Now it is recognized as a fact. It has been for some time. So the wives of senators argue, that cabinet members have to be confirmed by the senate, and therefore in a measure they are creatures of that body and consequently lower in rank.

Woman Suffrage Champion. Senator Warren, who introduced in the senate the other day a proposed woman suffrage law, thinks that it would be a good idea to start the new Hawaiian government with an amendment. He has presented an amendment to the Hawaiian bill, stipulating out the word "male" in connection with qualified voters.

"We have had equal suffrage in Wyoming for 30 years," said Senator Warren the other day, "and it is therefore no longer an experiment."

"Do the women really vote?" "They do. The number of women who cast their ballots is as great in proportion to population as the aggregate total of voters of the other sex. It may be that in a few remote counties where it is very inconvenient to get to the polls this average does not obtain, but the exception merely proves the rule. We have had some women officials, but they have generally been connected with school work and have made admirable officers. We have never yet had a woman member of the legislature. In fact, no woman, so far as I can remember, was ever nominated for a legislative position."

"How are the polls on election day?" "They are as quiet as a church, and I attribute this fact largely to the presence of ladies. Women go to the polls without fear of trouble and cast their ballots. They take a deep interest in political questions, and their right of suffrage is exercised with great intelligence."

The Canal Appropriation. The action of the house committee in cutting down the appropriation for the Nicaragua canal to $10,000,000 is not intended as a blow at the bill, but simply to provide the amount necessary to start the work, leaving it to succeeding congresses to appropriate the rest of the money as the enterprise progresses. There is no need for a large appropriation this year. It could not be used, and every dollar above the actual expenditure would revert to the treasury at the end of the fiscal year, and a re-appropriation would have to be made. If the whole sum necessary to construct the work were allowed, it would make this congress seem most extravagant in appropriations, and therefore the leaders advised that only $10,000,000 be named for use this year.

"There is a bill to abolish the canteen system in army posts before the committee on military affairs," answered Chairman Hull when asked about such a measure.

"Will it be taken up by your committee?" "That I cannot say definitely, as it rests chiefly with the committee. I have had one or two communications about it inquiring if the writers could confer with me regarding the measure. I have been here every afternoon, but thus far I have not seen any one who is interested in hurrying such legislation."

THE LUCK OF A DESERTER.
Strange Story of How He Became a Millionaire and the Result.

Along in the fifties a Scotch sailor named Penny deserted from a man-of-war on the west coast of South America and found his way to the interior of Bolivia, where he worked as a miner and did odd jobs for a living. In the course of time he took up with an Indian woman, and after she had nursed him through a long and dangerous illness he married her to show his gratitude. She reciprocated his confidence and affection by leading him to an ancient mine, which had been abandoned and partially filled at the time of the conquest in order to keep it from falling into the hands of the Spaniards. With the aid of his wife and a fellow countryman named Mackenzie, Penny cleaned out the rubbish and struck a vein of silver that made him a millionaire. The mine is still operated and is one of the most profitable in South America.

After having developed the property and organized his affairs with Mackenzie as his superintendent some years later, Penny returned to Scotland and purchased the estate near Aberdeen upon which his parents had lived as laborers. His Indian wife could neither read nor write and could not speak or understand a word of English, but was habitually arrayed in silks and satins and wore jewels that were the wonder of all the country round. Penny spent his money like a Monte-Christo, and the fame of his philanthropy will never be forgotten by the people of that region. He brought a son of Mackenzie to Scotland to be educated and sent him to the best schools. He also adopted a nephew of the name of Craig, the son of a village parson living near Aberdeen. Penny insisted that both should adopt his name, and, as he had no children of his own and no prospects of any, promised to make them his heirs.

When he died suddenly, he left a will bequeathing his estates and his millions to his wife and commending to her care and generosity his two adopted sons, Craig and Mackenzie Penny.

Shortly after Craig Penny started for Bolivia with the wife, leaving Mackenzie, who was then about 18 years old, in school. During the voyage, by some means, Craig induced Mrs. Penny to marry him, and when they arrived at Oruro he produced a marriage certificate, took charge of the property and dismissed the faithful Mackenzie, who had been sole manager of the mine for many years. Then Mrs. Penny died under mysterious circumstances. Although her husband attempted to keep away doctors and priests, the old lady, through a servant, managed to send word to friends that she needed protection and before her death declared that she had been poisoned. The scandal was hushed with money, and Penny lived like a lord on the profits of the mine, of which he claimed to be the sole owner, but after a time young Mackenzie learned what had transpired in Bolivia and started for Oruro to protect his rights. Being a British subject, he placed his claims in the hands of Thomas H. Anderson, United States minister to Bolivia, who was in charge of British interests, and the latter, with the aid of Dr. Alonzo, recently president of Bolivia, endeavored to arrange an amicable settlement of the controversy, under which the two boys were to have equal shares in the mine.

When Mr. Anderson returned to the United States at the end of his term of office, he brought young Mackenzie Penny with him in order that he might complete his education in Washington, but after a time, when he had returned to Bolivia, President Alonzo organized a syndicate to buy out both the heirs for $500,000 each. He now controls the mines and is paying the two heirs in installments, while both are drinking themselves to death at Autogasta.—Chicago Record.

DR. BELL'S PINE-TAR-HONEY
A fish dealer is thus quoted in the Philadelphia Record: "I had my first taste of a Yezo oyster yesterday. It was 13 inches long, and three of us sat down to it. The carver asked me what part I preferred, as though it had been a beefsteak. We left when we were through enough to make a hash, I guess. Some western man is importing these oysters to breed on the Pacific coast, where they call an oyster as big as your thumbnail a Saddle Rock. They have such small ones there. The Yezos are from Japan, and it is hoped that they'll increase the size of the dwarf Pacific ones. A Yezo has a good taste, an excellent taste, but—excuse me! This oyster is as thick through as a roast of beef. Do you like that idea? When you cut into it with your knife, a pint or so of juice runs out. It is so big that you can see its veins and arteries, and if you are eating it raw you may see it quiver, perhaps with pain, when you put your fork into it. Some say they have heard it moan. I don't think it will ever become popular in Philadelphia."

Doubtful Economy.
"Of course," he said, "I appreciate the motive that actuates you in your efforts to get along without a girl, but—"

"Well?" she said inquiringly as he paused.

"Taking everything into consideration," he went on, "is it true economy?" "Isn't it?" she demanded.

"Well, I hardly feel competent to pass judgment on the question," he replied. "I have just received our family physician's bill for the treatment of those three cases of acute dyspepsia that developed in the family during the last month. Now, perhaps?"

But she was just as mad as if he hadn't tried to break it to her gently.—Chicago Post.

CROSSINGS.

In City and Country

The Company Desires to Know How Many Vehicles and Pedestrians Cross Their Tracks.

The Pennsylvania railroad has struck a new idea, but as yet no explanation has been made public as to the why and wherefore of the plan. Operator McGrievy stated this morning that one of the section men was to be placed at each of the crossings in the city and to keep tab on every vehicle and pedestrian that passes over the tracks. The men are to remain at each crossing for three days in order to strike a fair average. The same rule is to be observed in all of the towns and cities along the line, and at every point where a country road crosses the track. Account will also be made of those who are considered trespassers and at the end of the three days each one of the men will file his report with the officials. It is the opinion of a local railroad man that the company desires to distinguish between the crossings that are frequently used and those that are not, and will use the evidence thus obtained in case a demand is made for gates or watchmen to protect the public.

THE NEW C. H. &amp; D. CARD.

Supt. Floeter returned last night from Cincinnati where he has been holding a conference with other officials about the new time card that is to go into effect Sunday. The card is not yet ready for distribution but the changes were furnished on application this morning. There are not many radical changes, trains 3 and 13 being the ones particularly effected. The time of arrival and departure of all passenger trains on the Lima and Toledo divisions are given as follows:

AN AIR-SPITTING TRAIN.

A test of the Frederick U. Adams train shield to relieve moving trains of atmospheric pressure was made near Baltimore, Md., last Tuesday, and proved to be all that the inventor claimed for it. The test was made on the Baltimore & Ohio road and a locomotive of the ordinary style was used. The train was composed of six cars, all of which and the tender were covered completely with wood and steel screens extending in one piece from the roof to within a few inches of the ground. The steps and platform were inclosed, strong lattice being closely woven over the aperture, while the rear end of the train tapered down to a thin wedge. As it sped over the rails at a speed of over a mile a minute it looked like a huge cigar. The greatest speed attained was eighteen miles in sixteen minutes. On the steepest grades the speed maintained was nearly double that of ordinary trains drawn by the fastest locomotives. Mr. Adams claims that with his shield a train can maintain a speed of 100 miles an hour. The inventor was formerly a Chicago newspaper man.

NEW SYSTEM.

An exchange says: "It is reported that within a few days the Erie railroad will introduce a new system for operating block signals on its lines by which telephones will supersede the telegraph tickers now in use. The telephones will be operated by men who will replace the telegrapher."

NOTES.

Engineer Nutting, of the L. E. & W., took out Northern Ohio engine No. 23 yesterday in the place of passenger engine No. 9. After the new time card goes into effect, Sunday, the passenger trains will be pulled by engines with 17-inch cylinders, among them being Northern Ohio engines 21 and 23 and L. E. & W. engine No. 38. The Fort Wayne Sentinel contained the following notice yesterday which will be of interest to the friends of

Mrs. E. H. Kirkland, formerly of Lima. "Freight agent E. H. Kirkland has not yet been able to move into the Bash flats, recently leased. Mrs. Kirkland is lying quite ill at the McKinzie house, though she has passed the critical period of her illness and is now improving rapidly, and until she is completely restored to health the family will not attempt to move."

The dispatchers on the C. H. & D. road are to take their turns going over the lines in order to become more thoroughly acquainted with the divisions they operate. Mr. Packard went as far as Dayton this morning and tomorrow will go to Toledo. The trips will be made on local trains and all of the sidings and yard room in the towns along the route taken special notice of. Messrs. Reel and Tharp will go over the line next week.

John Perry, formerly an operator on the C. H. & D. railroad is in the city visiting old friends. Mr. Perry is now located at Dresden Junction in the employment of the Muskingum Valley Road.

Chief Dispatcher Louy of the C. H. & D. returned from Cincinnati last night at nine o'clock in time to witness a part of the initiatory work and call the house to order when the Elks and their guests sat down to the banquet table.

Ed. McDonald, assistant road foreman of engines on the Pittsburg, is here from Fort Wayne today.

Wanted.

Two men of good address to act as solicitors in the city. Salary, $15 per week and expenses. Work to be done in Lima and vicinity. Call at G. E. Blum's any day this week. 73

Commencing May the 10th, round trips for a single fare will be resumed on all lines. Until further notice cars will run to the cemetery on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday after noons. THE LIMA RAILWAY CO. 63

Jacob Hilly, who was jointly indicted with James Brennan for stealing rope from J. L. Andrews, a contractor and driller, and selling it for junk, was brought up for trial this morning, a separate hearing having been granted the accused at the request of his attorney, Frank Mead. The theft was committed on the 9th of April near Beaverdam, where Andrews was engaged in drilling a well. There was about 1,175 pounds of rope which at seven cents per pound equaled an amount, the theft of which constitutes a penitentiary offense.

Dr. Miles' Nervine.

The nerves of the human body act as messengers to convey to the brain impressions of outward effects, and to convey from the brain to the muscles and organs nerve force or vital power. Without this vital power the heart, stomach, lungs, bowels, and all organs of the body would be unable to perform their functions and life would cease. When these messengers become deranged or the supply of nerve force is depleted, the best remedy to restore them to their normal condition is Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. It creates a good appetite, gives refreshing sleep, and cures that tired feeling. It acts on the nervous system, which controls all the processes of the body, toning it up into sound and vigorous action. It overcomes the excessive wasting and puts back the lost flesh.

"I was troubled for thirty years with weakness of the heart and nerves. Had palpitation and fluttering of the heart upon slightest exertion and was generally run down, weak and nervous. I found that Dr. Miles' Nervine was the only remedy that gave me relief, and I am satisfied I would not be alive today but for its use. My son and daughter have both taken Dr. Miles' Nervine with best results." Mrs. MARY EGERS, London Mills, Ill.

"Two years ago I was so run down that my nerves became all unstrung and I almost lost my reason. Two doctors waited on me, but neither was able to do me any good and my husband bought a bottle of Dr. Miles' Nervine and began giving it to me. It helped me right along and when I had taken seven bottles I was cured." Mrs. CAROLINE SCHROEDER, Metropolis, Ill.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is sold at all drug stores on a positive guarantee. Write for free advice and booklet to Dr. Miles Medicine Co., Elkhart, Ind.

Speaker Henderson made an apt reply to a remark that the speaker's duties were already shockingly agitating him. "Well," replied Mr. Henderson, "I am not as young as I was, but I am not 20 years so old as I hope to be at the proper time."

THE GLASS OF FASHION.

Pale shades of gray and beige color are the fash in dress gowns and are quite as much worn as white.

Imitation diamond buckles are a very conspicuous feature of dress trimmings, and other pretty buckles are of enameled flowers.

Russian lace in heavy quality and light varieties are very much employed for trimming handsome cloth gowns in the pastel colors.

A good many pretty gowns are finished around the lower edge of the skirt with fur. They are charming in effect, but on long skirts gather dirt and dust and that quickly spoil their beauty.

A pretty evening gown of thin material with bead trimmings has straps over the shoulders formed of strands of beads held together on top of the shoulders with a clasp. The upper part of the arm is exposed below this upper band, and below to the wrist is a transparent sleeve of the material of the gown, shirred.

The collars to many of the hand-some cloaks that are now worn to the theaters are some cause of anxiety to their wearers. They are stiffened to give the proper effect, and being high they have to be adjusted carefully when the wearer slips the cloak down from her shoulders as she takes her seat. A crushed collar is ruled.

How London Lives.

The art of living cheaply has been accomplished in London. For breakfast no one thinks of taking a heavy meal. People there know the value of money and expend it accordingly. All over London are eating houses where a meal can be had at from 5 to 15 cents. Invariably the people drink cocoa or chocolate, a cup of this is almost a meal in itself. The price varies from 2 cents to 5 cents a cup. One system of restaurants use so much cocoa that they make their own. In America we have not yet discovered the great food value of this article. When buying ask for Cleveland Cocoa, Rose's Unsweetened or Rose's Sweet Chocolate. Look for the name of the manufacturer on the wrapper.

Advised the Storm.

A certain congressman went home at a very early hour in the morning. He had made a night of it with some friends. He knew that his conduct would be considered reprehensible by his better half, and so, as he ascended the steps of his modest home, he racked his brain for some plan to avert the lady's wrath. As he entered the hall he saw an umbrella. Instantly it occurred to him that the umbrella might be his salvation.

He carried the umbrella up stairs. Seating himself on a chair in the corner of the bedroom, he raised the rain guard over his head, and then he coughed loudly. His wife awoke and saw in the dim gaslight her huge lord sitting solemnly under the raised umbrella.

"What are you doing?" she asked in natural surprise.

"It is 8 o'clock, my dear," said he, "and I am waiting for the storm."

The congressman's ready wit saved him from a Caudle lecture. He is waiting now, however, to find an equally effective act for the next time he stays out late.—Washington Post.

PLAN OF THE ELECTRIC TIME CLOCK.

The practical chronometer sends forth loud successive rings that can be heard all over the clubhouse. At the end of three minutes fighting the electrical gong sounds again, and the contestants take their corners.

The clock is to have four faces, so that spectators in all parts of the building can "watch time." This arrangement also does away with the referee counting a man out. Every referee seems to have his own idea of ten seconds. Some count them quickly, some slowly, and some count a man out extraordinarily fast.

A New York woman who is spending her first winter in Havana writes that she has arrived at the land of perpetual starch. On reaching her room, the guest chamber in a private house, on the night of her arrival she found only one sheet on the bed, the second one folded neatly across the foot, to be used or not, as she desired.

Needle Paper. Saxon makers of needles drove England out of Brazil by wrapping their goods in pink paper instead of black. Other Germans are catering to the fondness of Russians for red in their dress. France recently learned how distasteful green is to a Chinaman, but it cost a good deal of money to make the discovery.

Black With. The best Krupp gun can fire a shot 12 1/2 miles, and the United States government is constructing at its arsenal at Watervliet a monster gun which, it is said, will carry a heavy shot 21 miles. The new British naval gun, though less than half the weight of the American weapon, mounted on the heights of Dover, can, however, drop a shell on the shores of France.

American Indian Lacemakers. A complete display of the lacemaking industry of the Indian women of the United States will be one of the features at the Paris exposition. Miss Sibyl Carter, director of the Indian lacemaking schools, is confident that the lacemaking industry of the Indian women will solve the problem of livelihood of the Indian mothers.

The different lace schools are at the White Earth, the Leech Lake, the Red Lake and the Birch Coulee reservations in Minnesota. The Onondaga in Wisconsin, the Onondaga in New York state, Anadarko in Oklahoma and Greenwood in South Dakota. Several hundred Indian women find employment in the schools. Only the older women are enrolled as workers. The industry was founded to give to the Indian mother a means of livelihood. It has been in operation a number of years. Miss Carter, as director, visits large cities in the United States once or twice a year and takes orders for the work. The workers are paid for their labor, and they strive to keep the lace neat and clean and the workmanship of a high order. Some of the pieces are as delicate as a cobweb, and others show the strong, enduring quality of the battenberg and venetian.—Buffalo Express.

What Will the Next Generation Whistle? The time when Oregon and Washington forests will have to bear the brunt of the country's timber needs may be upon us sooner than we think. According to The American Lumberman's annual review, the stock of white pine lumber in the country continues to decrease rapidly. The stock at the mills is now 2,278,000,000 feet, a decrease of 765,000,000 feet from that of last year. Going back through the previous years it appears that the present stock of white pine is the smallest since 1890, while at the same time the white pine resources of the country are over 25 per cent less than they were at that time. This shrinkage in the forest area already means a shortage of 2,000,000,000 feet, which must be annually filled by the substitution of Georgia yellow pine and Oregon and Washington fir. It has been estimated that the whole remaining area of white pine forests will be practically denuded within five years.—Portland Oregonian.

The New York woman who is spending her first winter in Havana writes that she has arrived at the land of perpetual starch. On reaching her room, the guest chamber in a private house, on the night of her arrival she found only one sheet on the bed, the second one folded neatly across the foot, to be used or not, as she desired. Both sheets were stiff and slippery to the last degree, the pillow covers matching them in this respect. When her laundry was returned to her the first week, every article was similarly rigid with starch. "It has taken," she writes, "six weeks' steady coaching of my washerwoman to convince her that my request of no starch does not mean simply a little less starch, but I have at last succeeded, and I now get my handkerchiefs and wearing apparel in usable condition."—Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post.

Our Long Neck. Possibly the collar men have been hoping that the fashion would change so as to reduce the width of collars and lessen the consumption of material per dozen, but we don't see much sign of such a change. Americans average pretty long between the jaw and the clavicle, and the rising generations appear to rise farther than ever in that direction. Moreover, it is more customary than formerly to clothe the entire stretch and that requires a great quantity of fabric.—Men's Outfitter.

Great Bowling Tournament. The national bowling tournament, which will be held at Union Hill Park, N. J., on July 15, promises to be the most important event of its kind that has ever been held in the metropolitan district. It will be held under the auspices of the United Bowling Clubs of New York, and prizes to an aggregate value of $10,000 have been guaranteed. Dr. H. H. Tamm, president of the American Bowling Congress, is conducting the preparations for the tournament. It is proposed to erect in Union Hill Park 26 bowling alleys, of which six will be for the exclusive use of women. One contest in the tournament which will excite considerable interest will be that for the club championship of the world and a $500 trophy. There will also be a contest for the individual championship of the world.

A Carnival of Sports. It has been decided by the Michigan division of the League of American Wheelmen to turn this year's annual state meet into a festival of all kinds of sports. Chief Consul Earle has decided to award this festival to the first city or town to prove itself the possessor of 200 league members. It will take place in July and will have as its features aquatic sports, running races, bicycle races, baseball games and automobile races. A number of well known public men in Michigan have signified their intention to contribute funds for this festival, and it is likely to be a success.

The First War Correspondent. As far as can be gathered, the first recognized war correspondent to a newspaper was a man, whose name, unhappily, has sunk into oblivion, at the siege of Antwerp in 1831. Much earlier in the century, though, there was an informal and unrecognized manner a witness named Peter Minervy—one can make a shrewd guess as to his nationality—who on his return from the Waterloo expedition told the British public a good deal more about that unfortunate naval and military blunder than the British government of the day cared to have published. There was, too, some really admirable pen and ink work about the Carlist war in the London papers, notably by Frederick Harcourt and C. L. Guinness. Mr. Guinness told the hands of the Carlists and was about to be shot when he was rescued from his impending fate by the intervention of the late Lord Randolph, who had taken service in the cause of Don Carlos de Bourbon.—London Post.

Industry and Success. "There's nothing like farin on a hill-side," said the man with the faded hair during a pause in the conversation. "If you pick out a good location."

Bowled Dr. W. G. Grace. Dr. W. G. Grace's gentility and love of children are well known, but few people have probably heard the following incident, which took place a short time ago. The great cricketer was engaged to play in a match at a certain village in Bedfordshire. Before going to the cricket field, however, he was captured by his host's small son, who was playing with a diminutive bat and stumps, and while the doctor bowled to Master Bobbie several leading professional cricketers defied. Great was the fun, especially when Dr. Grace himself went in, handling a bat about 12 inches long. It mattered not that the spectators were guffing for the man in the crowd.—Chicago Tribune.

There's nothing like farin on a hill-side. "Do you mean to say," they asked him, "that you ever worked on a hillside farm or anywhere else?" "Who said anything about working?" he rejoined. "I said hillside farin was all right if you picked out a good location. I had a location right down below a 40 acre farm where a fellow put in one whole summer raising melons, an pumpkins. When they got ripe, they broke off the vine and rolled them down on to my land. It was a good deal of bother to gather 'em up, but I done it. Made a pretty good thing out of it too."

It was a narrow escape and nearly cost him his reputation as the fastest man in the crowd.—Chicago Tribune.

LUNG HONG

May Take Another Route

Grief Brings the Chinaman to Death's Door

And the intention of Deporting Him as Decided by Judge Ricks May be Defeated.

Lung Hong, the Chinaman who was taken into custody here and ordered deported by Judge Ricks, of Toledo, who confirmed the decision of Justice Atmur on that question, may escape the sentence of the court and never again see his native land. The report is sent out from Toledo that Lung Hong is dying in his cell, his illness being the result of worry and consequent grief over the result of the investigation made as to his rights of citizenship. The Toledo Bee of yesterday contains the following:

"Lung Hong, the Chinaman who is to be deported to China, is a very sick 'Chink.' He is confined at the county jail and it will be impossible to start for the coast with him for some time. The trouble with Lung Hong seems to be his sorrow at being obliged to leave the 'land of the free and the home of the brave.' Since his arrest he has been heart-broken and has cried like a child over his misfortune. He was visited today by some other Chinamen from Lima, who brought with them a letter from relatives in China and a quantity of money, which they gave him for his use.

"Isn't it a remarkable thing," asked an official this morning, "that these 'chinks' are not allowed to remain here? The churches are spending millions of dollars to lift up the Chinese, and when we get them here they are not allowed to stay except under certain conditions. They seem to fit in the social scheme all right and we find them doing such work as white men will not do."

A later telegram sent from Toledo appears in the Enquirer this morning as follows: "Lung Hong, the Chinaman who was ordered deported to his own country by Judge Ricks, has become so sick over the idea of going back that all hope of saving his life at the county jail is given up."

CLUBS

Are Closing the Season,

And the Calendar Will be Shelved for Awhile.

The Society Event of the Past Week Was the Reception Given by Mrs. Will Woolery.

Quite the largest affair socially during the week was the reception given yesterday by Mrs. Will Woolery from 2 to 5 and Miss Nellie Woolery from 5 to 6. Two hundred ladies calling during the first hours and forty girls during the last. The broad piazza around the front of the house was enclosed by screens and made inviting with rugs, couches, chairs and pillows. Indoors all who assisted the hostesses were gowned in pretty spring attires which showed to good advantage in the pleasant rooms which were profusely decorated with spicy carnations and fragrant lilacs and swansons. The matrons assisting in welcoming and entertaining the callers were during the early hours, Mesdames Clatter, Ramseyer, Kerr, Hume, Kendrick, Everton, Pangle and Gillis. Mrs. LeRoy Hume, the guest of honor, has for some time resided in Cincinnati but has returned to Lima to live.

The dining room was a pretty scene of rosy hue, a large rose-bowl of bridesmaids roses gracing the center of the polished table, pink ribbons wound with similar were festooned from chandelier to corners of the table, while each side space was occupied by tall candelabra with pink candles. The same hue was carried out in jess, bouquets, &c., which were served by Misses Eloise Waters, Bess Reichelderfer, Ivy Robinson and Edna Burton, each in dainty toilettes.

At five o'clock the younger element arrived in their usual good spirits. The young hostess was assisted by Misses Charlotte Hixley, Evelyn Booth, Margaret Finley, Nana Golley and Genevieve Robinson, who took turns serving in dining room and at the frappe bowl.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. A. G. Stockdale of north Pierce street received about thirty-five ladies at three o'clock. Her parlors were decorated with gay tulips in clusters in each convenient space. A music box gave forth sweet sounds for a short time previous to the most excellent recital of choice reading by Mrs. Jonathan K. Brice, her selections being as follows: Riding Down.....By Nora Perry A Set of Torquatoe.....By T. B. Aldrich "The Yellow Throat".....By Van Dyke "Str Gallehad Rode By".....By Juliet Robb "The Serenade".....By T. B. Aldrich "The Fisherman's Wife".....By Alice Cary "Morris Men".....By Ruth McHenry Stuart

The appreciation shown by the hearers was very evident at the program's close, all being enthusiastic over the treat. Misses Sabine Carnes and Bonnie Borquin in dainty toilettes served delicious refreshments. The guests from out of town were: Mrs. Jesse Huber, of Findlay; Miss Street, of Deshler, and Miss Eastman, of Meadville.

Yesterday afternoon, Mrs. E. W. Moser of east High street was the hostess for the Happy Hours Club. After an interesting program had been enjoyed the hostess surprised her guests by departing from their usual form of entertaining. Instead of serving refreshments she invited all to board a summer car and enjoy a trolley ride over all the various lines in the city. The invitation was gladly accepted and the delightful May weather was just in order for the day.

The club season is drawing to a close and each week records the final meeting of one of them. Yesterday afternoon the Sappho club held its annual business meeting for the election of officers and new members. The roster for the next year is to be as follows: Mrs. W. L. Mackenzie, president; Mrs. H. B. Adams, vice president; Mrs. J. C. McCullough, secretary; Mrs. I. R. Longworth, musical director; Mrs. Rial Truesdale and Mrs. John Roby, executive.

Last evening, Miss Margaret Finley of south West street entertained a congenial party of young people. Music and dancing were the principal amusements enjoyed.

This evening Dr. and Mrs. F. G. Stauber, of west North street, will entertain the T. and T. club at its last regular meeting for this season.

This evening, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Keet of east Market street will entertain the members of the Happy Hours Club and their husbands.

ENVOYS

Will be Warmly Received

A Committee Appointed to Make All Arrangements

And the Boer Representatives Will be Invited to Come to Lima When-ever Practicable.

The meeting called for the purpose of arranging to receive the Boer envoys, now on their way to this country, was well attended last night and the interest shown in the project indicates that there are many sympathizers with the Boers in Lima.

The representatives of the Dutch Republics are coming to America to enlist sympathy and consequently financial aid in carrying on the war with England. They will make a tour of the larger cities and will undoubtedly come to Lima in the course of their travels, as a letter to that effect was received by Hon. H. S. Prophet and published a few days ago. Mr. Prophet acted promptly and called an early meeting which was postponed until last night.

M. L. Becker was selected as chairman of the meeting last night after a few introductory remarks by the ex-mayor. The latter is a member of the national organization which has its headquarters in New York City, and he explained that there were only a few in the state, so that it was likely that the envoys would only visit those cities that had representation in the national organization. Mr. Prophet thought that the expected visit of the distinguished South Africans should be considered an event of importance and proper arrangements made to give them a cordial reception. His suggestion was readily adopted.

A motion was made by Jerome Shine that a committee of five be selected to carry out Mr. Prophet's ideas and assume all responsibility so far as receiving and entertaining the visitors it concerned. The five named were H. S. Prophet chairman; M. L. Becker, F. N. Galmarneau, Simon Spillacy and George Feltz. The committee is authorized to select such sub-committees as may be deemed necessary. No date could be decided upon last night as the tour across the continent will probably not be definitely arranged until the arrival of envoys. The letter stated that the gentlemen would arrive in New York about the 12th of May, which is tomorrow.
